YOUTH'S VISITANTS.

A youth sat fingering, on a sunny slope,
A delicate, small harp,—the gift of Hope,
And ever and anon he woke a strain,
Low as the breath of morning, when it weaves
Its symphonies among the twirling leaves,
And musical as the warm summer rain,
Distilling on the young and tender grain.
That harp in memory yet is seen,
With its mimic garland, bright and green;
The wreath—a few unblown buds of spring,
That deep in the shade sleep perishing,
But now that the sun-light on them lay,
Their leaves uncurled to the eye of day,
And warmed by its heat a few short hours,
They looked to be neither buds nor flowers.
And the boy, he knew no note of sorrow,
For his burden was aye—"to-morrow! to-morrow!"

But Joy came by, with a lip of mirth,
And an eye that shone like a star on earth,
And a step so light, the grass scarce bent
Its taper spires as his way he went;
A shrill, clear blast on his shell he blew,
To the strpling then the bauble threw.
The boy sprang up from his grassy seat,
His cheek all flushed with the summer heat;
Hope's beautiful harp was cast aside,
And the shell of Joy pealed loud and wide,
Till hill and valley and wooded glen
Gave back the jovial sounds again.
Merrily, merrily, tripped the boy
Hand in hand with his partner Joy.
But soon the youth of the plaything tired,
The shell would choke with the slightest rain,
Or dust that rose from the beaten plain;
And only could sound when mirth inspired.
Scant was the music from which he might call,
And joy must be varied, or joy is dull.

Then Love appeared to his raptured eye,
Like a spirit sent down from the glorious sky;
He sang of beings as pure and fair
As the zephyrs that stir the other air.
A lute he bore, and he touched its chords—
They were eloquent with Love's own words;
Soft on the ear the murmurs fall,
Sadly, yet, oh! how sweet, withal!
All rudely the tyro snatched the lute,
But its unelastic chords were mute.
Vainly he forced each mastering screw,
To make it speak as Love had spoke;
All his unskillful hand could do
Availed him naught,
Love's lute by Love alone is taught.
He knew not of its hidden springs;
Once more he turned the key—the strings,
Strained to their utmost tension, broke!
The youth went by with mournful brow,
Hope, Joy, and Love, had left him now,

THE INTREPID JURYMAN.

Extracted from a late publication, entitled, An Excursion from Sidmouth (in Devonshire) to Chester:
BY THE REV. EDMUND BUTCHER.

I cannot help congratulating our country upon the inestimable value of trial by jury. I have lately met with a proof of its excellence which ought not to be forgotten.

A judge on the north west circuit in Ireland tried a cause, in which much of the local consequence of a gentleman in the neighborhood was implicated. It was a landlord's prosecution against one of his tenants for assault and battery, committed on the person of the prosecutor by the defendant, in rescuing his only child, an innocent and beautiful girl, from personal violation. When the defendant was brought into court, the prosecutor also appeared, and swore to every fact laid down in the indictment. The poor defendant had no lawyer to tell his story; he, however, pleaded his own cause effectually, and appealing to the judgment and the heart. The jury found him not guilty.

The Judge was enraged and told the jury they must go back and reconsider the matter; adding he was astonished at their giving such an infamous verdict. The jury bowed, went back, and in a quarter of an hour returned, when the foreman, a venerable old man, thus addressed the bench: "My lord, in compliance with your desire, we went back to our room; but as we there found no reason to alter our opinions or our verdict, we return it to you, in the same words as before—not guilty. We heard your lordship's reproof: but we do not accept it as properly applying to us. Individually, and in our private capacities, it is true, we are insignificant men; we claim nothing, out of this box, above the common regard due to our humble, yet honest stations; but, my lord, assemble here, as a jury, we cannot be insensible of the great importance of the office we now sustain. We feel glad that we are appointed, as you are, by the law and the constitution, not only to act impartially between the king and his subjects, the offender and the unoffender, but to form the barrier of the people, against the possible influence, prejudice, or corruption of the bench; to which we do not wish to offer the smallest degree of disrespect, much less of insult; we pay it the respect which one tribunal should pay to another, for the common honor of both. This jury did not accuse the bench of partiality or oppression—no, we looked upon it as the sanctuary of truth and justice; still, my lord, we cannot erase from our minds the records of our school books. By them we were taught that kings and judges are but fallible mortals; and that the seat of justice has been polluted by a Tressilian, a Seroggs, and a Jeffreys." The judge frowned at these words, but the intrepid juror thus proceeded: "My lord, I am but a poor man, yet I am a free born subject, and a member of the constitution—nay, I am now higher, for I am one of its representatives; I therefore claim, for myself and fellow jurors, liberty of speech."

The judge here resumed his complacency, and the orator continued his address. "We have nothing to do, my lord, with your private character. In this place it is veiled by your official one; we know you here only in that of judge; and, as such, we would respect you; you know nothing of us, but as a jury; and in that situation, we look to you for reciprocal respect; because we know of no man however high his titles or his rank, in whom the law or the constitution would warrant an unprovoked insult towards that tribunal, in which they have vested the dearest and most valuable privileges they possess. We sit here my lord, sworn to give a verdict according to our consciences, and the best of our judgments, on the evidence before us. We have in our minds, discharged our duty as honest men. If we have erred, we are accountable, not to your lordship, nor to the king who appointed you: but to a higher power, the King of Kings."

The bench was dumb, the bar silent; astonishment and applause murmured through the crowd—and the poor man was discharged.

(From the Geneva Gazette.)

The Tories make such wry faces at the overwhelming defeat they have experienced, that we are glad to meet with one of their number who can smile. The following extract from the Buffalo Journal contains more humor than could at present be distilled from all its co-laborers in the state:

"Blow ye winds, and crack your cheeks."

Editor.—Are the returns from the county all in?
Subscriber.—Aye, sir, your promise is kept, "arrogant little Erie" has given the greatest Whig majority in the state—2791 are told.

Ed.—Bravo, my good fellow, call the d—l, we will issue an extra to be off in the Telegraph.

Devil.—A slip, sir, from Genesee—2738 majority, and another, sir, from Chautauque, giving 1700.

Ed.—Off to the Committee Room—at two let the welkin ring—let our artillery tell of a battle fought and a victory won!

"Now are our brows bound with victorious wreaths,
Our stern alarms changed to merry meetings!"

Dev.—A slip from Livingston—1200 sir.

Ed.—"By St. Paul, the work goes bravely on!" Well, Avon water couldn't save Van Buren, after all.

Sub.—An express just in from Niagara, sir, 512 majority, and in Monroe 1000.

Lounge.—Huzza for the high-combed cock!

Ed.—More than we expected. Go a-head! Bring in your reports. Let the loud trumpet sound victory throughout the domains of the Young Lion of the West. Now, Thomas, my Sunday wig; my hat; my cane—I'll out and shout with the multitude. Pop—whiz—there they go—huzza for the Whigs and down with the Tories! Go it, my pippins!—out upon that Tory foreigner there singing

"Huzza for Sheneral Shackson,
Dat beat de foes vid knadsacks on!"

Dev.—Sir, Be good enough to rouse yourself; 5 o'clock, and the Telegraph is in, sir—Old Ontario and Yates, sir, and—

Ed.—Away to the post office, you young ragmuf. fin—away and firing in the news.

Dev.—Here you have it, sir, red hair, or no hair at all, sir, enough Whigs to cover Seward's head from this storm.

Ed.—Good again! Huzza for regenerated Greece! Give us more light—let the Committee Room and all the Whig Offices be illuminated to-night—and mark you, boy, none of your 12s to the pound. Let the best pipe of wine be opened—there isn't a headache in a hogshead of it. H-e-p! h-e-p! Quantum suff.

"Look upon this picture—and on this!"

Ed.—What a consummate headache!—Are the tables turned, or is our head turned?—Why, what is this, Grandma?

Grandma.—Now if I ain't beat—I told yo so. Just as I expected.

Sub.—Sir, O Lord, that we should come to this! You are convicted in Cayuga, and salt can't save you in Onondaga. Now we shall have nothing but hot livers and cold perses.

Old Meagrim.—Alas, my friend, I grieve to inform thee—

Ed.—Of what? Out with it. I am prepared for it. The State's Prison and Salt Works have no terrors for me.

Old M.—I grieve to inform thee, as I said before, previous to thy interruption, that Perish Credit, Perish Commerce, Beardsley, Esq. is re-elected. I brought him up—he is a worthy man.

Ed.—So I've long known from the character of his master—he and you have given the blue devils to the whole state. I say, boy, tell the foreman up stairs, to waste no more paper in printing these confounded bulletins.

Old Fidget.—A betting extra has just arrived from Albany.

Ed.—Why man, that rueful countenance?

"E'en such an one,
So dead, so dull in look, so wo begone,
Drew Priam's curtain in the dead of night."

How goes the fourth ward, my old boy?

Old Fidget.—Gone to the d—l, sir. War, Pestilence, and Famine is coming, Sir, and the Lord have Mercy on us! Cholera, sir, cholera was not a circumstance to it.

Office Holder.—Sage tells me, sir, that he charges the Whigs a shilling a piece for shaving, this morning, on account of their long faces!

Ed.—So, you have crawled out, have you? Well, let's know about the river counties?

Office Holder.—All against you—Greene and Old Orange even are with us.

Ed.—Pshaw! heard of rotten oranges before, and green sickness, too. Not frightened yet.

Dev.—Sad tidings bring I to you, from the east, sir,—the iron region fails you. New York, too, has gone by the board, and the veteran Root has fallen in Delaware. All is lost.

Lounge.—Huzza for the low-combed cock!
Ed.—Take in the banner—Burnam Wood has come to Dunsinnane—

"Bring me no more reports!
 Let's shake our heads and say,
 As 'twere a knell to our former fortunes,
 We have seen better days!"
 Thus part we, rich in sorrow—parting poor."

FRIDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 28.

The Session of Congress will commence on Monday next, and we intend, as heretofore, to furnish our readers with a regular abstract of whatever may be of general interest in the Congressional Proceedings, the important Public Documents, and some of the best Speeches on the most interesting questions. This paper therefore, will furnish a cheap and convenient record of these matters.

Country subscriptions (post paid) $3 a year in advance.

CORPORATIONS.

The following, from the Journal of Commerce, (one of the most respectable of the Wig papers, though having very little claims to respectability itself, particularly since its base and cowardly attack on a candidate for Congress on account of his opinions on religion,) is quite an admission in favor of the principles of opposition to PRIVILEGES, for which we have been contending.

"We agree most fully that the obtaining of acts of incorporation is a fruitful source of legislative corruption, and we are not sure but some important change might be adopted in this respect."

The article of the Journal, from which we extract the above, is in reply to one of the Evening Post, and concludes as follows:

"Why will not the Post adopt the plan we proposed two or three years ago—that shares in corporations should be sold by auction on account of the state? In this way each citizen would have a fair chance."

It would take a good deal to make us believe that such nonsense as the last sentence of the above extract is uttered honestly. The Post replies to it, in the only way it ought to be replied to, as follows:

"To this question of the Journal of Commerce we shall reply by asking another question. The sovereign power in this country is in the people. Why will not the Journal of Commerce advocate the plan that the sovereign power should be disposed of for a term of years to a single individual, and, to prevent any unrepugnant preference of a particular person, that the sale should be made by auction on account of the state? 'In this way each citizen would have a fair chance.'"

FROM CHARLESTON.—The David Brown, which arrived yesterday from Charleston, brought South Carolina papers of last week, containing several items of interest.

On the night of the 17th inst., a young man residing in the vicinity of Cedar Shoal, Columbia District, named John G. Ferguson, went to a store in the neighborhood, kept by a Capt. Rodman, to trade a small bag of cotton, which he did; a small balance coming to Ferguson, Rodman said he had not then the money, but would give it to him. Ferguson swore he would have it then, or would sue him. Mr. Walker, a gentleman, together with another individual, the only persons present, tried to appease Ferguson, telling him Rodman was good for the amount. Ferguson immediately seized Walker, and began beating him. Captain Rodman then jumped the counter, to separate them. Ferguson drawing a knife, Rodman retreated, but was followed by Ferguson, who stabbed him in the side and arm, causing his death in forty-eight hours. Walker, in the meantime, had got up and was sitting on the counter, when Ferguson furiously running at him, plunged the knife into his temple up to the hilt. Walker died in twenty-four hours.

FIRE AT AUGUSTA.—A fire broke out on the night of the 20th at Augusta, Geo., in the stable attached to the storehouses of the Brysons, corner of Jackson and Reynolds streets; the fire communicated to the back store (filled with goods) belonging to the estate of J. Campbell; the building next to the store, occupied by Mrs. Nichols, and a three story frame dwelling, belonging to J. Gardiner, were also consumed by the flames.

A riot and mutiny occurred on board the ship Waverly, lying in the bay below Mobile. The Captain was on shore. It appears one of the crew, William Gulickson, was beating a dog about the deck; the second mate requested him to desist, when he fell upon the mate and began beating him, three more of the crew, Holbrook, Tabor, and Wilson, assisting in beating the officer. The noise on deck caused the first mate to come up, when, on enquiring the cause of the disturbance, four others of the crew came up and also began beating him, swearing they would do no more work on board of the vessel. Soon after, a cry of fire came from the fore-castle, fire and smoke coming through the hatch. A burning bed was brought and thrown overboard. The officers running forward, this opportunity was seized by the crew to take possession of the boat. This the mates attempted to prevent, but were knocked down and beaten senseless. Six of the crew got in the boat, pushed off, and left two of their companions on board, holding the two mates down—these two fellows being caught in their own trap. Among the two left on board was Gulickson, the ringleader, who, with the other mutineer, Wilson, were carried up to the city in the cutter.

The skeleton of a man has been found near Mobile. Such parts of his clothes as remained appeared to have been of fine texture. His coat was apparently a blue strait body, and his hat white, with a hole near the band, about the size of a bullet hole. There were two (London made) pistols lying by the skeleton, one of them loaded, and the other not, and a red belt, in which the pistols were probably carried, also a small powder flask, and a box of percussion caps. A trunk key was found among the fragments of the wearing apparel, but no papers, nor any thing else than what we have narrated above, by which to conjecture his name, or the cause of his death.

A correspondent of the Augusta Courier writes from Milledgeville that Graves, on account of whose conviction Georgia has been furnished with a citation to appear at the bar of the Supreme Court, will be hung.

THE MURDERERS.—The Baltimore Patriot states that it has been ascertained which of the rioters on the Washington Rail Road perpetrated the recent murders of Watson and Mercer, and that they will without doubt be soon secured.

FOR "THE MAN."

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

MR. EDITOR.—As none of my queries have been answered, it is but fair to infer that the allegations which those queries imply are well founded. But can you, Sir, tell me, or can you hint to me, a cause why this subject is never broached, nor any notice of these communications is taken, by any of your contemporaries—neither the Democratic Evening Post, the fearless COURIER, the squib firing JEFFERSONIAN—nor indeed by any of those editors who have immortalized themselves by their untiring zeal in the cause of the people? To me it appears that the first requisite, in order to understand the political interests of the community, is a sound, practical education, conducted upon principles consonant with our nature, and in pursuing which, great errors may be committed; but in accomplishing which, consummate skill and long experience are indispensable. Is not this a subject worthy of the best talents in the editorial corps? And still they are silent—while the Public Schools are conducted in a manner which more than nine-tenths of the community neither know, nor appear to care about knowing. Meantime the tax gatherer calls upon them, and pockets a round sum out of their honest savings, which is the last they know about it.

I must again recommend to your readers to obtain (if the common people are not excluded from the perusal) the last, or indeed any recent, annual report of this Society, and observe the immense expenditure made for little comparative good. It is true, there are some fine scholars, and some rapid improvement in the Public Schools,—scholars who appear at public examinations in their broadcloth coats,—while hundreds of little ragged urchins, who have attended for years, are neglected and unimproved, and never noticed.

The Trustees of this Society are responsible to the Society, and the Society itself is responsible to the people. But if the people quietly submit to the capricious management of the men, amounting to some half a dozen, who now control the destinies of this institution, they richly deserve to suffer the consequences of their supineness and neglect.

By inspecting the By-Laws of the Trustees, it will be found that the only thing left to the Teachers is to keep their school rooms clean and well aired—a matter, one would think, not above the intellect of a menial. They are not allowed to have any opinion, neither to think, act, nor speak, but according to the decrees of men who know as little of teaching as of the constitution and laws of Tirra Incognita, and whose education (I speak of the more prominent Trustees) is in many instances below mediocrity. Subserviency—complete subserviency—to the will and wishes of the Trustees, is the highest recommendation to their favor;—whether that will or those wishes are in accordance with the By-Laws or not;—and for the truth of what is here advanced, I appeal to every Teacher with whom I have ever conversed on the subject.

Why is it that on the eve of, and during, an election, ninety-nine in a hundred of the tax payers of New York are "wide awake," and "up and doing;" when, at the same time, let the election terminate as it may, thousands of individuals would never feel any difference? But here is an institution in the midst of us, directly before our eyes, the affairs of which are either well or ill managed, and few, very few, suppose they have any thing to say of the matter. A change in the administration of the affairs of this institution, as far as its influence extends, is of much more immediate importance to the community than any other election whatever. The warmest political partisan, on either side, may rest assured that there are no features in any administration, from the days of the elder John Adams to the present, more odious, arbitrary, or capricious, than those which signalize the course of these pseudo benefactors of the public.

Q.

FIRE.—About 11 o'clock last night, a fire broke out in the building No. 117 Beekman street, occupied by Mr. Hough as a sash manufactory. The flames quickly extended to the hardware store of Mr. J. L. Brower, corner of Beekman and Water streets, and to the building adjoining, No 222 Water st. occupied by Mr. J. H. Wheeler, nautical instrument maker. The active exertions of the Fire Department succeeded in arresting the further progress of the flames, and at the time our paper went to press, they were entirely subdued.—Times of yesterday.

PEALE'S MUSEUM.—A lady aged one hundred and one years, yesterday dropped into Peale's Museum, having completed her shopping in Broadway, to pay a visit to Sergeant Wallace, aged 105 years, who is at the museum to receive the visits of the curious. We should have been much pleased to have witnessed the ceremonies of this interview; the reciprocal compliments and congratulations; the bows, congees and courtesies of the old school. Several young fellows of ninety years old, have left cards for the Sergeant. Evening Star.

LIBERAL REWARD.—$1,500 reward has been offered for the apprehension of a man by the name of Augustus L. Glover, who broke jail in Montgomery county, Alabama, on the 11th July last, charged with the murder of John R. Wiggings. The friends of the deceased obligate themselves to pay $1000, and the sheriff of the county has offered $500.

EXECUTION.—The execution of Charles Bowman for the murder of Jonathan McErwen, took place at Westchester, Penn. on Friday last. A moment before the drop fell, he acknowledged the justice of his sentence, and turned to those in attendance saying—"Welcome death—I am not afraid to die—I bid you all farewell."

CUMBERLAND, (Md.) Nov. 18.—The young girl upon whom the outrage of rape was committed in this county, has died, after lingering about two months from the perpetration of the deed. Ray, the man who was found guilty of the crime, and sentenced to twenty-one years' imprisonment in the penitentiary, may now in all probability have his sentence changed to capital punishment—hanging instead of imprisonment.—Civilian.

E. K. AVERY.—TUESDAY EVENING, NOV. 25.—We have just now learnt, from a source entitled to credit, that Avery has made a full and unequivocal confession of the murder of Sarah Maria Cornell.—Newport Republican.

The St. Louis (Mo.) Advocate of the 6th inst. says—"We have received accounts from Fort Gibson, A. T. which announce a gloomy state of health among our troops. About one hundred men belonging to the regiment of Dragoons have died. The last letters announce the death of Lieutenants Eastman and West."

FORTUNATE ESCAPE.—CLEVELAND, (Ohio,) Nov. 14.—The stage which left this place for Columbus on Monday evening last, in descending a hill in Brooklyn, about five miles south of this village, the night being very dark, ran off the road, and rolled down a steep bank, probably fifty or sixty feet, making several somersets, and dragging horses, driver, and all, along with it, and finally lodged in one promiscuous heap at the bottom. There were six passengers, among whom was a lady and child, all of whom, with the driver and the horses, escaped without the slightest injury. Very trifling damage was done to the coach. This is one of the most extraordinary escapes ever heard of.

CAUSE OF FIRE AT THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.—On Sunday, an aged minister, within five miles of Romford, proceeded at the close of the service to explain to his congregation the causes of the fire at the Houses of Parliament. It was, he said, because the Bills introduced for the better observance of the Sabbath, were all rejected. In proof of this, he quoted the following from the 17th chapter of Jeremiah, verse 27: "But if he will not hearken unto me, to hallow the Sabbath Day, and not to bear a burden, even entering in at the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath Day, then will I kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched."

FIRE.—The patent glazed wadding factory of Messrs. E. Peck & Co., situated on the Oriskany creek, Oneida co., was entirely consumed by fire on the 7th inst. at about 5 o'clock, P. M. The damage is estimated at from fifteen hundred to two thousand dollars.

Last year, a Polish gentleman having caught a stork upon his estate, near Lemberg, put round its neck an iron collar with the inscription, "Hæcciconia ex Polonia." (This stork comes from Poland,) and set it at liberty. This year the bird returned to the same spot, and was again caught by the same person. It had acquired a new collar of gold, with the inscription, "India cum donis remittit ciconiam Polonis." (India sends back the stork to the Poles with gifts.) The gentleman, after having shown the inscription to his neighbors, again set the bird at liberty.

A gentleman being forced to sell a pair of his own oxen to pay his servant his wages, told his servant he could keep him no longer, not knowing how to pay him the next year. The servant answered him, he would serve him for more of his cattle. "But what shall I do," said the master, when all my cattle are gone?" The servant replied, "you shall then serve me, and then you will get your cattle again."

CHAMBERS' EDINBURGH JOURNAL.—By William Chambers, Author of "The Book of Scotland," &c., and by Robert Chambers, Author of "Life and Adventures of the Chevalier Charles Stuart," "Traditions of Edinburgh," "Picture of Scotland," &c.

On Saturday, Nov. 8, the Subscriber commenced the Publication of "CHAMBERS' EDINBURGH JOURNAL." This work was commenced by the Messrs. Chambers, in February 1832, and in a comparatively short time obtained a circulation exceeding 50,000 copies. The Journal contains, consistently with the greatest simplicity of style, and the utmost purity of diction, a large variety of pieces in each number, all calculated either to enlarge the intellect, or to improve the heart. There are frequently contained within the limits of one paper, a summary of general or particular history, an historical or moral tale, a description of some popular or ancient custom, with its origin, a biographical notice of some eminent man, an interesting extract from an intelligent traveller, hints on emigration, or forming settlements, a popular account of some medical experience, a discovery, an invention, or an improvement in arts, a description of an ancient city, or some other point of antiquity, interesting anecdotes, shrewd observations and reflections, points in natural history, some account of a modern city, its inhabitants, manners, &c., with sundry varieties, all relieving each other, and no part being either vapid or useless.

The editors themselves have long been distinguished in the world of letters, and besides their personal exertions, they give ample occupation to other men of learning, so that this publication does not come before the world as a collection of articles compiled or extracted from other printed matter, but contains, mainly, original articles in its own columns. Its characteristic merits may be shortly summed up as follows:—the matter is extremely varied,—it is altogether devoted to subjects useful, or rationally entertaining, to the world at large, it is clothed with simplicity, yet perspicuity of language, its morals are sound, and its religion pure, and it comes within the means of the most humble class of readers.

The work will be published every Saturday, commencing with the 2d volume of the original work. Each number will contain eight pages royal quarto, on good paper and new type.

Terms:—$1 50 per annum, in advance, or three cents per No. on delivery, and in Monthly Parts, containing 4 numbers, neatly stitched in a printed cover, 12½ cents. Communications (post paid) to be addressed to

R. J. RICHARDS, 45 Ann street, New York.

Any person obtaining five subscribers and paying in advance, will be entitled to a sixth copy gratis.

PIANO FORTE WAREHOUSE.—ROBERT NUNNS CLARK, & Co., late R. & W. NUNNS, respectfully inform their friends and the public, that they have always on hand an assortment of cabinet, harmonic, and square Piano Fortes, from their manufactory, at their warehouse, No. 137 Broadway, two doors north of the City Hotel.

The extensive sale which the instruments of their manufactory have had throughout the United States for some years, has made them so well known as to preclude the necessity of saying anything with regard to the quality of the instruments bearing their name; they can only add, that the result of many years' experience in this branch of manufacture, added to the extended scale, they are prepared to carry it on, will enable them to offer advantages to purchasers equal to any other house in this Union.

Orders from the country punctually attended to, and old Piano Fortes taken in exchange. my24

WOOLLEY'S PATENT PREMIUM BEDSTEADS. Persons desirous of purchasing Bedsteads, whether the sofa, chair sideboard, counter, or ordinary, will find it to their material advantage to call and examine those manufactured at the corner of Broadway and White street, by E. S. WOOLLEY. The ordinary Bedsteads of his manufactory have sacking bottoms so constructed as to be tightened with a key—an invention universally pronounced superior to any other plan for the sacking bottom Bedsteads. The Cot Bedsteads are of equal finish and pleasing appearance with the ordinary bedsteads; have sackings similarly constructed with them, and can be taken down at will with the utmost ease and rapidity. Woolley's Sofa Bedsteads, for beauty, durability, economy and accommodation, defy competition—they will contain a durable sacking bottom bedstead, with bed and bedding, without the least injury to their beauty or use as a parlor sofa. These bedsteads have been considered of such decided superiority, as to uniformly receive the first premiums at the last three successive anniversaries of the American Institute. Attention is respectfully invited to the "Chair Bedstead," invented for the accommodation of the sick. This invention has proved so successful as to receive the general approbation of the Medical Profession, and is of such great benefit to persons confined to the bed, that it is believed every family would avail themselves of its use if they would but call and examine its utility. More explicit description is deemed needless, as persons wishing to purchase will call and examine for themselves, and the proprietor is confident that all, upon observation, will be convinced of the advantage in economy and comfort to be derived from Bedsteads of his manufactory. my24

TWO PRINTERS, BOOKSELLERS, & PUBLISHERS.—CONNER & COOKE, Type and Street type Founders, and Publishers, offer for sale, at the corner of Nassau and Ann streets, New York, Printing Types, at six months credit, or 7½ per cent. deduction for cash at the price affixed.

Their Type will be found as perfect, and made of as good materials, at least, as that manufactured at any other establishment; it is nearly all of an entire new cut; is lighter faced than any other exhibited, and will consequently wear longer, look better, take less ink and less labor in working than most other type.

N. B. Stereotype of every description will be thankfully received, and attended to with correctness and despatch. my2

DIARRHŒA, OR BOWEL COMPLAINT, AND CHOLERA MORBUS.—A specific which effects a cure of either of the above disorders, generally in one or two hours, is sold by George D. Coggeshall, Druggist, general agent for New York, No. 521 Pearl street, corner of Rose street; R. P. Tanner & Co., corner of Broadway and Grand street; E. C. & R. E. Moss, corner of Grand and Cannon streets; and H. N. Gamble, No. 91 Bowery. Price, 25 cents per bottle, which cures from 2 to 5 cases.

This medicine has been used in several thousand cases, and it is believed not to have failed to give immediate relief in one of an hundred. It is equally efficacious in the disorders of adults and children. It is of importance that the medicine be used in the early stage of the disease, if practicable. Where it has been so used, it has not been known to fail of success.

Families and travellers, at this season, will find it advantageous to be provided against sudden attacks. 24tfmy
